SOIL CONSERVATION

JIMMIE HOLLAND

Soil Conservation

The property of the United States is in a thin layer of top soil. This layer is only six inches thick. From this thin layer we get our food and fiber. Every day this layer is getting thinner.

What is being done about this situation? The most encouraging fact is that we have recognized the danger. The solution is in learning to use the land efficiently and at the same time protect the soil. This is soil conservation—using the land to produce the most without waste.

But soil conservation means more than that. It means holding more rainfall on the land to save moisture for crops and shade floods. It means farming on the level around the slopes to prevent soil washing, and terracing in waterways lest they become gullies. It means growing more soil-building grass and more livestock to use it in means protecting range land and pastures from overgrazing.

It means planning for each acre on each individual farm to meet the needs of the future as well as the farmer. It means research work to develop and test new methods. It means convincing the farmer, who is the custodian of the soil, of the urgency of conserving it. And it means telling everyone about it.

Here are some of the things you can do to help the soil conservation movement. You can learn more about soil conservation by attending a soil conservation school. You can learn what soil conservation is taught in your schools. You can learn what is being done about soil conservation in your community. You can explain to your friends and neighbors the importance of soil conservation to friends and to groups to which you belong.

GRAINS: The grain index at 123 is the same as last month. The index is 31 percent below December 1954. Corn held steady at 1.06 a bushel and wheat at 1.81 is up 5 cents a bushel and oats at 47 cents is down 2 cents a bushel.

COTTON AND COTTONSEED: The cotton and cottonseed index at 256 is down 1 percent from mid-November and 5 percent below December of last year. Cotton at 32.2 cents is down 2 cents and cottonseed held steady at 54.4 per ton.

Cotton Grower Aids Listed by Specialist

AUBURN—Several rules concerning the planting of 1956 cotton crops are of definite advantage to the grower who wants to hold on to his acreage allotment.

So says Jasper Jernigan of the API Extension Service, Jernigan who is Extension cotton specialist, this week listed several regulations which can aid the producer.

First, he said, county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation officers are prepared to pre-measure cotton land for farmers. Charge for this service is $5 per farm plus 30 cents for each acre or fraction of an acre above five acres.

Pre-measurement guarantees a farmer that he will not over or under-plant his allotment. Jernigan explained, since the ASC officer assumes responsibility for any error in measuring if the crop has been planted within the staked-off area.

Another rule which Jernigan mentioned as being beneficial to the grower concerns the allotment of future cotton acreage. He said a farmer who plantations are being benefited by the allotment will get credit for the full allotment in the portioning of next year's acreage.

The specialist also cited the rule allowing growers to turn in unused portions of their allotments for re-distribution as being to the farmer's advantage. As he pointed out, the allotment holder can turn in all or part of his cotton acres without being penalized when future allotments are made, provided part of the allotment is planted at least one year after three.

Pigs on pasture should be banded to prevent damage to pasture from rooting and reduce chances of the pigs picking up diseases.

Cheap seeds are more often than not, a poor bargain. Choosing the Parity Ratio unchanged and the Index of Prices Paid for Farm Products declined 30, the lowest since Sept. 1940.

FARM BRIEFS

It is predicted that the per-capita fruit consumption in the U. S. may increase a little in the first half of 1956 over the rate a year earlier.

A tractor engine or other motor should be turned over rapidly 20 or 30 times when it is first started up after a period of storage. This operation will loosen any stuck rings or valves.

Figures gathered by the American Meat Institute show that retail dealers want pre-packaged fresh meats in tone to one and one-half pound packages for most steaks and chops.

Three to five pounds packages for roasts of all kinds.

To prevent onion flavor in milk, take cows off onion-infested pasture four hours before milking.

Alabama Vetch Does Well in Miss. Tests

AUBURN—The excellence of an Alabama-developed vetch variety has been confirmed by tests in a neighboring state.

From Stoneville, Miss. comes word that Auburn wollypod vetch which was developed by the API Experiment Station yielded an average of 602 pounds per acre more than hairy vetch in four out of five years since the fall of 1950.

Giving this report, API Extension Seed Specialist Ralph R. Jones said Auburn wollypod is not yet available commercially.

However, practical result demonstration crops are now being grown on several farms in the state. And Jones added that API researchers are working with West Coast plant breeders to determine the possibilities of producing commercially acceptable seed there for use in Alabama.

Home Gardens Also Need Good Seedbeds

It's pretty well understood that good seedbeds are necessary for crops which are planted, cultivated and harvested mechanically. But home gardeners need good seedbeds, also.

An adequate waterway for terrace cropland must be designed to take care of the heaviest rainfall.

Cover Pond Gate Valve for Protection

AUBURN—The exposed part of a farm pond drain is in danger during this cold weather. Water in it can freeze, burst the pipe.

This warning comes from API Extension Fish and Wildlife Specialist Earl F. Kennamer, who for several years has been recommending that farmers put drain pipe valves outside the dam, where they are easier to operate. Speaking in Auburn this week, he explained that an outside valve allows the water to remain backed up in the pipe under the dam. The part of the pipe that's under the dam is naturally protected from the cold. But, as Kennamer pointed out, water in the valve and the bit of pipe that's out in the open can freeze when the mercury dives low enough so they ought to be covered with some kind of insulating material.

The specialist said the covering can be a foot or more of soil or a commercial insulator.

Don't get burdened with heavy short-term debts. If you need money for any agricultural purpose, let us give you a helping hand with an easy-to-pay long-term land bank loan on your farm. Only 4 per cent interest, and as long as you need to pay.
